Barrett & Farahany's new branch marks an important step in our continued growth and expansion. We continue to seek to provide more accessible legal services across the country. With Att. Aaron Maduff leading the firm's newest branch, clients can expect a wealth of experience in employment law involving sexual harassment, discrimination cases, civil rights law, overtime, and unpaid wage claims as well as executive compensation agreements.

"We are excited to be joining the Barrett & Farahany team," says Maduff. "We're confident that with our expanded resources and Western footprint, we will be able to help secure justice at work for more people nationwide."

Aaron brings more than two decades of legal experience with him from his time at Maduff & Maduff and has also had success in appellate matters such as constitutional issues, criminal cases, and military court proceedings making him a valuable asset for clients seeking legal counsel across many areas of law.

With Barrett & Farahany in practice for more than 20 years, this new branch led by Maduff provides clients access to a deep trove of legal prowess and litigation experience. The firm stays on the cutting edge of the law, technology, and methods to pursue justice on behalf of people.

Existing clients will continue to work with the primary attorney responsible for their case, also gaining an entire team going forward. Every person who calls the firm speaks with an attorney within 24 hours —always at no charge.
