LAI D OFF VS. FIRED: WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

Whether you've been laid off or fired, losing your job is not a fun experience. However, contrary to popular belief, these two forms of termination are not the same, and each type has completely different legal protections and government benefits.

WHAT IS BEING LAID OFF?

Being laid off occurs when an employee is let go from their job for reasons out of their control. It has little to no connection to their work ethic, what they bring to the company, or anything else.

WHAT IS BEING FIRED?

Being fired, on the other hand, occurs when an employee is terminated from their job due to poor performance or misconduct. The employer usually makes this decision and it can happen without prior notice. Fired employees are not eligible for the same benefits as laid-off employees in most states, but may be entitled to certain termination benefits.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

If you are unsure of the differences and have recently been laid off or fired. In that case, the employment law attorneys at Barrett & Farahany can explain more about both occurrences and what kind of help you can receive...
